Between 1990 and September 2004, ATP has awarded $2.3 billion in funding to companies to develop high-risk, enabling technologies. Industry has matched this funding with $2.1 billion in cost share. Of the $2.3 billion of ATP funds,

- 218 joint ventures with 961 member firms and organizations have received about 56 percent of total ATP award funds.
- 550 firms in single company projects have received about 44 percent of total ATP award funds. Four out of five of these single company projects also include informal collaborators.

Joint venture project award amounts range from $600K-$31M, with an average of $5.9M.

Single company project award amounts range from $434K-$2M, with an average of $1.8M.

For joint ventures (JVs), ATP funding is distributed among projects as follows:

- 34 percent are to JVs led by small businesses (fewer than 500 employees)
- 16 percent are to JVs led by medium-sized businesses
- 33 percent are to JVs led by large businesses (Fortune 500 or equivalent)
- 17 percent are to JVs led by others (non-profit organizations)

For single company projects, ATP funding is distributed among businesses as follows:

- 78 percent are to small businesses (fewer than 500 employees)
- 10 percent are to medium-sized businesses
- 11 percent are to large businesses (Fortune 500 or equivalent)
- Less than one percent are to others (non-profit organizations)